Kerri Weller is one of the proud owners of Caring Transitions of Kingwood, alongside her husband, Mr. Bill Weller. Caring Transitions is a locally owned and operated business dedicated to helping individuals and families navigate life's many transitions with compassion, professionalism, and personalized support. Whether it's downsizing, relocating to a senior living community, clearing out a loved one's estate, or preparing a home for market, she provides trusted, solutions that reduce stress & restore peace of mind.

Kerri brings over 20 years of experience in the healthcare industry, most recently serving as Director of Marketing for an independent living community. It was during this role that she first witnessed the tremendous impact Caring Transitions had on residents and their families—and was inspired to bring those same services to her own Kingwood community. Motivated by both professional insight and personal experience—having managed her own mother's estate alongside her sisters—Kerri understands firsthand how overwhelming and emotional these situations can be.

Longtime residents of Kingwood for over 25 years, Kerri and Bill are deeply rooted in the community. They are proud parents in a blended family with four married adult children, eight grandchildren, four granddogs, and their beloved chihuahua, LuluBell.

Caring Transitions of Kingwood offers a full range of customizable services, including decluttering, organizing, packing, moving, resettling, in-home estate sales, online auctions, estate clearing, and home staging for sale. They serve Kingwood, Humble, Atascocita, Porter, Porter Heights, Crosby, Huffman, Timberlane, New Caney, Woodbranch, and surrounding areas.

Kerri and Bill are passionate about removing the burden of “what to do with all the stuff” so their clients can focus on what matters most—family, healing, and moving forward.
